My Hair

Grows finer, thicker every year
By Edna Wallace Hopper.

At my ripe age, my hair is such as any girl might envy. Heavy and luxuriant, lustrous, fine and clean. I have never had a gray hair, never falling hair, never a touch of dandruff. And every year, despite my age, it grows more beautiful.

I am not a girl, remember. For 31 years I have been a stage star, and am still. So I say to you, that no woman's hair need grow gray, or thin out, or lose beauty.

Beautiful at 57

I owe my hair to my mother. She said, "Solomon knows some way to preserve one's hair. Let us find it. And we searched the world until we found the best that science offered. Mother died at 57 with hair like mine today. Never a hair turned gray. I wish what she used, and every year my hair has grown more beautiful.

Scores of my friends, on the stage and in society, have secured like results by my method. So I am convinced that all people can secure them. And I am going to help them do it.

What must be done
Experts tell me that hair health depends on a healthy scalp. All oil called Sebum accumulates there.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is sold by all Janesville druggists.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE APOLLO.
As the first of its two double programs for this week, the Apollo offered on Monday night to be repeated Tuesday, John Barrymore in "The Lotus Eater" and Mack Sennett five-reeler, "Home Talent." The two make a well balanced combination of adventure, drama, love and comedy.

"The Lotus Eater" is adventure and romance from start to finish. In its unusual story is told the life story of the son of a captain who grew to manhood without seeing a woman.

Among the most thrilling and beautiful scenes are those of the alps flight, the parachute drop, and other sea scenes. John Barrymore easily holds his honors as the screen's most handsome actor, and one of its best, in this picture is the young O. Colleen Moore and Freddie Barrymore.

T. Sennett comedy has been seen here before. Its hilarity is much heightened by the appearance of Ben Turpin.

AT THE MYERS.
"The Young Rajah" is a good picture but it is not Rodolph Valentino who makes it so. True, Rodolph lends his handsome appearance which is perfectly in the part and does his usual posing, but it is good direction, a good cast and above all, a good story that makes the picture so high in entertainment value. For in that quality it exceeds any of the pictures seen here in recent weeks.

Its atmosphere, first of the spirit of India, of secluded stone temples and beautiful palaces, then of New England, where the mystic power of an Indian prince is strangely felt, especially good, and the artistry with which one sees, first, boat races at the beginning of the picture, and then in the place of the usurper, makes the picture well-balanced and much more probable.

Rodolph Valentino is seen in a new aspect here, and wears a tuxedo as handsomely as the costume of a Spanish matador.

Wanda Hawley, Charles Ogle and others make up the well-formed cast. The picture is to remain through Thursday. Musical accompaniment is highly commendable.

CENTRALIZING CHARITY WORK

One of the recent movements in Janesville is that for the centralization of the welfare and charitable work now conducted by a dozen or more agencies into a single organization. A committee was appointed recently by the chamber of commerce to hold hearings on the subject and an investigation has been going on out of which it is believed, a definite plan will be formulated.
This is to be presented at the members forum of the chamber at the monthly dinner, Monday night.

In a city the size of Janesville there arises a condition, not at all peculiar to the location, but so general that it applies to all places of about the same population. A few families who are always receiving aid and never seem to recover from depths of poverty, are constantly being helped and make no progress. If there are children—and there are few exceptions when there are not children—the young are given the worst kind of an education in pauperization and dependency. The work of a centralized body for the purpose of handling all these charities is therefore not alone the feeding and clothing of these incapable families but that sort of work which will arrange for jobs for the parents, better conditions in the home and such care of the children as will take them from the paralyzing influences of a continued and habitual pauperism, under the guise of charity.

There should never be a pauper class. Defective and deficient persons, of course should not be permitted to marry and bring children into the world. We shall some day arrive at a regulation of this tremendous factor in breeding a class of paupers and incompetents, mentally and physically. But having once permitted it to come about we have a duty in providing homes for the children of the incapable fathers and mothers and regulatory and helpful measures that will do all that skill and assistance can do for the underprivileged.

It is a big plan and a large proposition and Janesville as a leader and one of the foremost cities of the state in such matters of public welfare, may readily enter upon a movement to reorganize all charitable agencies into a central body, while at the same time taking away none of the prerogatives and activities of any of the constituent organizations.

All that is left of the treaty of Versailles is the memory of the gold plate service on the George Washington.

THE WAY IN WALWORTH.

When Walworth county gets a notion it takes it seriously. If there is one thing more than another that Walworth county is proud of it is the fair held at Elkhorn each year. Champion of the county fairs, it has arrived at that high place because the stockholders get out personally and vote for the officers and see that the management is of the sort that realizes the ideals in fact.

In the recent election there was a great gathering of the stockholders and the contest was as intensely interesting as an election for state officials.

There might be a most excellent example in this for the stockholders of the Janesville fair this year, at the annual meeting to be held Saturday of this week.

Prince Christopher of Greece, who with his American wife is visiting in the United States, says he will "be sorry to leave America." Therein he shows a different notion from some of the Americans who, escaping from an atmosphere that screamed about their former trades in skunk skins or as makers of soap and pickles, have ex-patriated themselves and become subjects of foreign sovereigns.

Coué's "better and better" regime should be used at Waupun or tried by Sheriff Beley on the jail prisoners.

A Janesville man wanted a bottle of whiskey.
He telephoned to a bootlegger and in a short time it was delivered to him at a restaurant.
"Service," is the motto apparently of that boot-legger.

This kind of a winter cuts a lot of ice with some folks.

Any person in the state who has read the 10-

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES—II

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—On the democratic side of the political Main street leading to the White House there is a great array of distinguished men who aspire to even greater distinction. It can not be called a procession, for a procession needs must have a leader and at this time it is utterly out of the question to give first place to any one of the democratic who are presidential possibilities. One man looms up, however, as the tallest of the prospective candidates—William Gibbs McAdoo.

When Mr. Gibbs left President Wilson's cabinet in December, 1918, it was stated that he was inclined to do so by the necessity of repairing his personal fortunes which had been sadly depleted during his long service in Washington.
At the same time it was well understood that he was getting ready to make a bid for presidential honors.

That the legal profession must be highly remunerative is indicated by the fact that Mr. Mc-Adoo was ready to make that bid within two years. He was a candidate before the democratic national convention at San Francisco in 1920.
But that bid appeared to be a half-hearted one.
He was in the running, but it did not seem that he was making a real bid for it. It looked more like a preliminary cantor. Mr. McAdoo had been rated as a man of sagacity from the date of his entrance into national politics, and in 1920 he was generally credited with sufficient acumen to realize that that was not going to be a good year for a democratic presidential nominee. In other words, he did not want to head his party's ticket when there wasn't even a fair chance of winning the election.

Be that as it may, Mr. McAdoo was not nonplussed. He displayed sufficient strength to show that he is a real factor in democratic national affairs, and then he proceeded to do a little more repair work on his personal fortunes. Incidentally, it may be said, he has given abundant evidence that he has not been neglecting his political fortunes and is now ready to make a real bid for the presidency in 1924.

Is McAdoo to be the political heir of Woodrow Wilson?

That was one of the interesting questions during the 1920 preliminaries and it is none the less interesting now, especially in view of the reports of Mr. Wilson's continued improvement in health and the manifestations of his active interest in public affairs. The former president is still a power in his party and apparently one to be reckoned with in the 1924 campaign.

As is well known, the ties between Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Wilson are exceedingly close. Mr. Mc-Adoo was Mr. Wilson's personal representative in the democratic national organization in 1912, and during his almost six years of service in the Wilson cabinet he ranked all his colleagues in intimacy with his chief. Furthermore, he married Miss Eleanor Wilson in 1914, thereby becoming a two-fold member of the president's family.

It is to be expected Mr. McAdoo repeats the suggestion that president may come to him because he is Mr. Wilson's political heir. Benjamin Harrison never liked the intimation that he was wearing his grandfather's hat; William Howard Taft's geniality disappeared when it was hinted that he attained the presidency as Roosevelt's legatee, and Robert Lincoln gave up the idea of a political career because he could never escape being known as his distinguished father's son. It is human nature to prefer to achieve, honors strictly on one's own, and Mr. McAdoo is nothing if not human.

Another possible source of irritation to Mr.
McAdoo in the matter of his relations with Mr.
Wilson is the former president's well known disposition and ability to keep a man guessing as to how and where he stands with him. Mr. Mc-Adoo has had some experience in that connection.
If interesting gossip current in Washington is to be credited.

After the 1912 election, according to one story, Mr. McAdoo was kept on the anxious seat until the very eve of the Wilson inauguration before he received the slightest authoritative intimation that he was to be tendered a cabinet portfolio.
He made no secret of his desire to be identified with the new democratic administration, and he was assured by mutual friends that the president-elect would invite him into the cabinet. But as days lengthened into weeks without a word to him from Princeton, McAdoo is said to have become convinced that something had occurred to prejudice Wilson against him and to have abandoned all idea of coming to Washington when at last the long distance telephone brought him the fateful message.

Again, according to another tale, during the first few weeks following the declaration of war against Germany, McAdoo was the one cabinet member who was constantly called into consultation by President Wilson. The secretary of the treasury was summoned to the White House two or three times a day and not infrequently the president called at the treasury department. It was apparent that Wilson leaned heavily on Mc-Adoo in these trying hours. Then, suddenly, this intimate relationship ceased and Secretary of War Baker became the recipient of all those presidential attentions and confidences.

So marked was the change, it is said that Mc-Adoo again became convinced that he had been "underestimated" or somebody had come between him and Mr. Wilson. One day Mrs. Mc-Adoo appeared at the White House, almost in tears, to inquire from members of the family what had happened to estrange "Mac and father." The explanation was simple. In the early days of the war the first emergency measures to be taken related to finance, and the president had given almost his entire attention to them. Hence the constant consulting with the secretary of the treasury. When, in order, came the question of military preparations and the president had turned naturally to the secretary of war. He had not "dropped Mac like a hot cake and made Newt Baker his chief adviser." All of which goes to show that one may be close to Woodrow Wilson and yet not know how close.

But, aside from the Wilson influence and where it may be thrown when the democrats come to elect their presidential nominee in 1924, William Gibbs McAdoo has two elements of strength that are all his own. First, he has taken a master's degree in the school of practical politics, and second, he made a record in the Wilson cabinet to which he and his friends may point with pride.
As secretary of the treasury, virtual head of the reserve bank system and director general of the railroads, he came in direct touch with all kinds of people in every part of the country and enjoyed an opportunity such as few men have to build up a personal political organization of real national size.

Just how much he made of that opportunity will be seen after a few hot calls have been taken in the next year's democratic national convention.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE MAN SHE MARRIED.
"The man that I will wed," said she,
"A tall and handsome man must be,
I'll let him smoke, but not too much,
But drink he must decline;
He must be generous with his purse,
When angered he must never curse,
On Sundays he must go to church
In weather foul or fine."

"The man that I will wed," said she,
"Must think the world and all of me,
He must be gracious in his speech
And have a ready smile;
But more than that he must be true,
And wise and strong enough to do,
Not just the common work of life,
But something that's worth while."

The maiden meant it when she said
These things about the man she'd wed,
But Cupid laughs at jolly dreams
And mildly fires his darts,
For well he knows that maids forget
Such vows when once the man is met,
And marriages are never made
By order blanks and charts.

She's married now, but not into A tall and handsome hero who Possesses all the many traits
She wore she's have to see;
Her husband's slovenly and short,
He has no ready smile to sport,
He's just a common man who dips
His bread crusts in his tea.

He has been known to have a grouch,
He fails to sleep upon the couch,
He sometimes lets his whiskers grow,
He's careless as can be;
There's naught about the man she wed
To turn a lovely lady's head,
But I can never read her mind,
Because she married me.

Who's Who Today

PRINCE MIGUEL DE BRAGANZA.

The changing order brings to light the fact that the eldest son of the pretender to the throne of Portugal is selling insurance in New York City. Prince Miguel de Braganza, son of Don Miguel Braganza and grandson of King Manuel II, was born in 1875.

From 1893 to 1904 he was known as Prince to his associates in the insurance office but he signs
his work as Miguel de Braganza.
The Prince married Anita Stewart in 1909, at Tulloch Castle, Scotland. Before the marriage could take place
royal complications arose.
The prince's father had to be smoothed out. The American girl was finally given the rank of Princess by King Francis Joseph, until the wedding was over. The Portuguese pretender opposed his son's marriage, but yielded when Prince Miguel renounced his rights in favor of his father, King Manuel.

This man with his romantic and historic background is now a 9 to 5 man, a large office competing with American go-getters.
His brother-in-law, William Rindland Stewart, Jr., is a member of the insurance firm.
The Prince gives as one of his reasons for going into business the fact that he felt that in America where nearly everybody did work of some kind or other.

Character: The Essential.

White people as well as colored should be instructed by the address delivered by Dr. J. Edgar Montgomery, Ala. He said the position the An-gio-Saxon race holds is due to character, not color of skin. It follows that unless the whites look well to the maintenance of their character
they will lose the respect of the colored people.
The power of dominance through force for a time, but without character that compels respect of all peoples whatever the hue of the skin they will sink to a lower level than the spirit that hope of advancement by the colored people of the United States is through the development of character.

He asked that his race be not judged by and biased for the conduct of a few "who miserably misrepresent our race." This is sound, as his further statement that "the negro should not be prejudiced toward the white race on account of a few whites who do not represent the general thought and attitude of their race." The vicious element among any people is a minority. This is well established. Unfortunately criminality commands attention beyond its deserts in the foundation of the character of a people.
Masses suffer from this as much as do negroes, in proportion to their numbers. Understanding of this is fundamental to the upbuilding of character which will contribute more than anything else to appropriate relations between the races.—Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

THE IMPAIRED HEART.
An individual who has heart disease is likely to succumb, finally, to some other disease. For the greater part, the popular notion that heart disease brings swift death without warning is based upon the "one old custom of untrained 'concocters' who assumed the deceased had heart disease, and they considered no indications that he had been poisoned or kicked to death.

In a large share of all cases of valvular disease, "leakage" as it is popularly called, and distortion of the heart valve is an indolent process of which the victim is unaware, it occurs in the course of or shortly after such common illnesses as colds and croup, sore throat or perhaps pneumonia, and they way to the lining of the heart and lodge upon one of the valves, setting up an inflammatory reaction. The inflammatory action is called "endo-carditis" (inflammation of heart lining). It may produce such slight symptoms or signs that the trouble with the heart is overlooked, unless the physician is alert. But the same following the inflammation distorts the delicate heart valves so that they do not close as perfectly as they formerly did, and the heart is thus made to pump more or less backflow of blood with each heart beat. The heart, therefore, must do greater work constantly, in order to maintain the circulation. It must pump enough blood to compensate for the back-flow of "leakage." The heart must therefore enlarge, develop greater muscular power, to accommodate the extra work. If the individual is to do the same amount of work or play as he formerly did.

Now there are many other things beside valvular damage that may impair the heart. The heart muscle is damaged by reason of a faulty blood supply to the muscle through thickened or narrow arteries,
or by poisons in the blood supply,
such as alcohol, discharges, toxin,
pneumonia toxin, so that the valves are all clear enough, no carbon accumulations or anything, but the compression is weak.

Again, the heart muscle may be enlarged and highly developed, as by athletic training, and then badly injured by excessive strain, as in the immature youth who attempts to "train" all in a few short weeks for such a severe test as a football game or a marathon race, and a kind of sudden stretching or giving of the heart muscle occurs (doctors call this distortion of the heart). From such an injury the victim recovers slowly if at all. Often he carries a handicap throughout life—the heart remains impaired.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Effect of Cancer Preparation.
I enclose a clipping from an article on cancer which appeared in a newspaper. It states that there is no pain with the early stages of cancer. If that is true, how can one tell when one is developing an internal cancer, say of stomach or of the womb?
(Mrs. S. W.)
Answer—Sometimes cancer is painful in the early stages of the disease.
One must go to the physician for examination when any such question or doubt arises. The doctor, by feeling about it, is a mighty unfeeling business.

Stigmata.
I want to have glasses fitted because I had so much headache. The doctor told me I had stigmata of the eyes.
I looked up in the dictionary, but can't understand what it means. (Mrs.
S. W.)
Answer—It means that rays of light are brought to a point on the retina as they should be. In other words you have a "Bottle of Ours."

It is injurious to children's health to have Raynaud's disease and acromegalgy, and for disfigurement of the face in the home. (Mrs. W. J.) Answer—It is better to open the windows and ventilate than to try to kill one odor with another.

Prejudice and bigotry are to be avoided, for there is a sign making for trouble over religious opinions.
Suspensions regarding the motives of others may prevail during this configuration and there may be business

Why is tuberculosis called the "white plague"?
A. The public health service says that in the early days of treating tuberculosis the patients were so often confined to their homes and not allowed fresh air that they soon became pale. It was due to their complexion that the phrase "white plague" became applied to the victims of tuberculosis.

The Wall Flower

By MARION RUBINCAM

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS

Pandora Nicholson is so shy that meeting new people is a painful experience. She lives as a sort of hermit with her aunt, Maude, her uncle Peter, and their daughter Gladys, who is heavily burdened, noisy and the most popular girl in town. Pandora is in this "set" too, but generally ignored and overlooked. She has been neglected and overlooked so much that she believes herself positively invisible, too unattractive mentally and physically ever to make friends.

So when Morton Newberry begins to like her, she returns his affection to an intense degree. The little friendship becomes love—when Gladys decides she wants Morton, possibly because he was the only boy who never paid any attention to her—after him—and succeeds in marrying him. Pandora is heartbroken. Then suddenly Mrs. Gates, a decorator from New York whom she had met in summer before, asks her to spend the winter with her.

THE TIED MAN

Several things happened before Pandora had lived in the city long. She found herself possessed of what was heretofore a wardrobe of unbecoming luxuries. She found herself the mistress of Gloria's household. She was in charge of Francis, and the new cook, a huge negroess who could get up the most delicious meals, whose intentions of keeping the place clean were always good, but whose inherent laziness was too much for the best of intentions. "I see a room as a perfectly round place," Pandora said once with humorous exasperation. "There are no corners in her world. And she takes a nap every day after luncheon."

This brought a laugh from Gloria.

"Never mind, her muffs are dreams of delight and her roast chicken something to die for," she said. "We take what we can get these days and give thanks. Pan, do you know my young friend, George, has taken a great fancy to you."

"Has he?" Pan asked in surprise. "Has he?" nudged Gloria. "Is that so strange?"

"Yes," Pan answered. "For if he does, he's the third person who has."

And at Gloria's incredulous smile, she went on:

"My father, who is as futile as I, and you, who are so very kind and sympathetic."

She did not mention Morton, who was always in her mind, the memory of whom still hurt sorely.

But she treasured this new liking. And when George Ridgeway came in one afternoon a few days later, her eyes lit up with the greatest joy at seeing him.

"But Gloria isn't here, she's not coming home until late," she said. "She's going from her office to dinner and to the theater."

"Then you'll ask me to have tea with you, won't you?" George said and settled himself down into his favorite cushioned chair.

That's how their friendship began.

WHY STAY FAT? YOU CAN REDUCE

The answer of most fat people is that it is too hard, too troublesome and too dangerous to force the weight down. Marmola Prescription Tablets overcome all these difficulties. They regulate metabolism, cleanse the system, and have the added advantage of cheapness. A case is sold at one dollar by all druggists in the world over, or send the price direct to The Marmola Company, 125 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich. Now that you know this, you have no excuse for being fat, but can reduce safely and easily without going through long, slow, tiresome exercise and starvation diet or fear of bad effects.

My Baby Skin

Soft and rosy as 40 years ago. Due to a new-type clay By Edna Wallace Hopper Almost any girl one-fourth my age might envy my complexion. Its color, its texture, its smoothness and its bloom. Yet I have been a star in musical comedy for more than 30 years.

Today I am famous the country over for the beauty I retain. I look like a girl of 19.

I owe this to my mother. She traveled half the world over with me in search for supreme beauty. She found it, and they made me what I am.

Now, as a duty, I am telling the facts to all. And I have arranged to supply all women the very helps I use, as I have long done to my friends.

First—Youth Clay

I owe my complexion, above all else, to a clay I found in France. Clay was then a novelty, used by famous beauties only. And that clay largely made their fame.

Now countless women use a clay. Any woman who does not never looks her best. Complexion clay is a recognized essential. No woman will omit it when she once knows what it does.

But they use what I first used—a crude and muddy clay. Thanks to science, I have today something ten times better.

Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay. At all drugstores—50c and $1 per tube

"How long are you staying?" he asked once.

"As long as Gloria wants me," Pan answered. "But I'm not much use now. Frankie is better and she has a cook. I suppose I'll go back to the farm in the Spring."

The queer depressed feeling came over her again at the idea. The farm—and Gladys—and the baby who would be born in the late Summer; and Morton driving out each day from his office; Grandma White's scolding and her father's restlessness to get away—it began closing down on her like prison walls.

"You like Gloria, don't you?" she heard George ask. And at once the prison walls vanished.

"Oh, I adore her," she cried, her hands unconsciously clasping together as she said it. "You—you can't imagine what she's been to me. She's the most wonderful woman I ever knew."

George laughed.

"A large compliment."

"But—she's just—the girl paused for an adequate word, then added, "perfect."

A little cynical expression appeared again, making the man look older and tired again.

"What a thing it is to be young enough and inexperienced enough to believe still in perfection!" he said. "I don't know whether I envy you the youth that point of view implies, or feel sorry for you because of the bitterness and disillusionment still ahead of you."

"I've had the bitterness and disillusionment," Pan said, suddenly able to talk freely to this man.

"You?"

"Yes. Then, just as suddenly, her old shyness came back and the self confidence she had gained fled away from her."

"A man or woman?" George asked.

"Oh, a man," she had to answer. "I never met a woman I could like at all, until I met Gloria. She's been everything—wonderful, she couldn't be disillusioning."

George smiled again.

"You still have faith. That proves how young you are. It's only been half a disillusionment."

Pan glanced at him shyly.

He was lounging back in the big chair, his legs straight out in front of him, his head tilted back, and a hand thrust in his pocket, one hand the inevitable cigarette that he so rarely puffed at, loosely held between his fingers of his finely modelled hand.

"He was staring into the fire, not looking at Pan at all."

The girl thought suddenly how tired he was. His eyes had lines at the corners, there were lines at each side of his mouth. She wanted at once to feed him eggs and cream and make him take afternoon naps and long country walks. She lost forever her shyness of him, when she gained a pity for him.

"What had been his disillusionment and disappointment? Gloria? Gloria was married she knew."

"You are in love with Gloria," she thought out loud.

ADVENTURE TRAILS BLAZED FOR YOU BY LEWIS ALLEN BROWNE

I want to belong to you! If you would like to have me, let's write to each other. You may call me Aunt Blaise, the Merry Makings Lady, and send your letter to the editor of this paper.

"There, Jenny Linn, isn't she a jolly little thing?" asked Betty, as she introduced Jenny Linn, her rag doll, to the Hopi doll she had just made from a tan stocking.

"She's jollier if she had a dress on!" Betty giggled. "It isn't very long since you didn't have a dress yourself, but if you want a dress for Ma-san-i-yam-ka, I'll make one. What'll you have, Ma-san-i-yam-ka—a middy suit or a party dress?"

The little Hopi doll snorted. "Who ever heard of Hopi suits? We wear middy suits." And with that she proceeded to tell Betty how to make a Regular Hopi Dress. Do you want to know too? Then listen!

In the first place, a Hopi dress isn't a dress at all. It's a long woven scarf, thrown over one shoulder, caught together on the sides and tied with a sash. The Hopi men weave these scarves while the Hopi women build the houses which is a very upside down way of working. Isn't it? Of course Betty couldn't make the next best thing. She measured Ma-san-i-yam-ka's shoulder to her knee. Then she cut a piece of gray, woolly cloth twice that length, and half as wide as the scarf. She sewed a skirt and fringe to the ends. It was shaped like A. The Hopi scarves have stripes of red and black woven into them.

Then she sewed a piece of black and red wool and made stripes by sewing many bands of simple, running stitches—as shown in B.

Then she put the scarf over Ma-san-i-yam-ka's shoulder, and caught it together on either side, from the waist down, with over-and-over stitches, leaving one arm free. She caught the folds together on one shoulder, and tied a sash around the waist as in C. This is exactly the way the real Hopi scarves are made. Her dress, of course really truly scarves wear beads. Betty made play beads by cutting bits of bright, paper and threading them on a string. When Ma-san-i-yam-ka was ready for the wildest snake dance in Hopi land!

Cut thin slices of American cheese and melt over each serving of asparagus and put in hot oven until cheese is melted. Serve immediately. A little hot white sauce may be poured over the asparagus before adding the cheese, or the toast may be moistened with a little hot cream. Of course this dish may be supplanted when busy mother serves it for the children's lunch. Ordinary toast may be used and will taste just as good to the hungry youngsters.

Baked Onions—Peel onions, cut in half crosswise and put in baking dish with a cupful of meat stock or boiling water. Cover and bake slowly until tender. The remaining liquid may be thickened and served with the onions. Hot milk, which a lump of butter has been melted may be used in place of water or stock.

Chocolate Blanc Manger—Two tablespoons cocoa or two squares of chocolate melted; two tablespoons cornstarch, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup sugar, mix and slowly one quart milk and cook until thick. Take from fire and add one-half cup chopped almonds. Serve with cream.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 21 years old and not a young man about a week ago. I like him very much and he seems to like me. There is another girl I think he likes and she is very jealous of us. He seems to want to listen to her until I speak to him. He denies caring for her and tells me he likes me. How can I find out which one he likes more?

Time will tell you which one he likes more. Do not try to talk to the young man when he is in conversation with the other girl, because it will give at least her the impression that you are trying to cut her out. It would also be unwise to question him about which one he likes better. Take matters as they come and do not try to rush them.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My daughter who is 20 years old has been keeping company with a young man (three years her senior) for four years. Christmas he gave her a diamond ring and a cedar chest. Her father objects saying that it isn't just the proper thing for her to accept them. Your answer will be appreciated.

Unless your daughter and the young man are engaged, it is not proper for her to accept his gifts. Probably they are secretly engaged even if they have not made an announcement yet.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it proper for a girl to tell her father who she has had one date with him? If so, should she write and ask him or phone him, or ask him personally? She should ask him personally to come to see her some time. But she should not write or telephone him.

WORRIED: Since you are only 17

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Wallace Hopper

ANSWERED LETTERS

Gaily—Wearing low shoes all the time will not enlarge the ankles, as people often think. It is the pressure of the shoe on the ankle which keeps them from getting so big. If you should keep them tight and supple. An obstinate case of blackheads will require patience and many treatments, which accounts for your failure to relieve the skin of them. A daily hot bath will help as it keeps the pores freed all over the body which helps to refine the pores of the face.

Outie—The stubby hairs that grow out after you have been using the tweezers on the brows may be made to fall in line with the old hair if you moisten them with a very thin oil, such as olive or almond oil. Massage the hairs with the oil and they will fall in place. After a few weeks of this treatment there should be no further trouble.

Wrinkles—Do not try to remove wrinkles that are on the face unless you can have the work done by a skin specialist. Massage the fingers to reduce puffiness. Bold hair is still in style; but if your hair has improved and it has now grown long it is a shame to have it cut off again, especially since you have worn it bobbed for so long a time.

A. C. H.—A simple and effective bleach is made from cucumber juice, or if this cannot be procured lemon juice may be used. Always follow the application of these bleaches by massaging plenty of cream into the skin. For fine lines use an astringent on the face and throat once each week, and feed the tissues every day with a rich nourishing cream as the pores will absorb.

Marian—A agree with you that you have formed a bad habit when you have been using rouge every day for two years and that is to "cover up" at such an age nature recovers quickly, so stop using these cosmetics and cultivate your opportunities for a healthy skin by natural means. Take a hot bath every night and keep the system clear by eating properly balanced meals. Learn to breathe deeply so you will be filling the system with oxygen and the result will be a natural pink to your skin.

Pinky—The hair you sent is a beautiful shade of auburn and it would be a great shame for you to ruin it by bleaching it to an artificial peroxide blonde tint. If you would try wearing black velvet with your lovely hair you would find yourself transformed. Learn to dress so you bring out all the beauty there is in such combination of color as you possess.

BRIEFS BY WIRE

New York—John D. Ryan of the Anaconda Copper Mining company announced his organization was negotiating for control of the Chile Copper company, in a deal involving $150,000,000.

Washington—The report of Rear Admiral Rodman places development of an adequate rate advance fleet based on Guam, Hawaii, and other points among shore projects for the navy.

Rome—Premier Mussolini told his cabinet that Italy had advised France to limit her actions in the Ruhr Valley and not shut the door on a possible agreement.

Paddies Beat St. Mary's in Wild League Game, 17-15

HECTIC FIGHT WON WHEN END SIGNAL REMAINS UNHEARD

Busy Man's Sport Page

By FRANK SINCLAIR

INTERSTATE LEAGUE. W. L. Pat. St. Patrick's, Janesville, 17-15. St. Mary's, Rockford, 15-17. St. Joseph's, Freeport, 15-17. St. Mary's, Janesville, 15-17. St. Joseph's, Beloit, 15-17. St. Patrick's, Rockford, 15-17.

Decided by the referee after the timekeeper's signal ending the game was not heard, St. Patrick's Janesville team in the southern Wisconsin northern Illinois church basketball league defeated St. Mary's team of Janesville Monday night, 17 to 15. By the victory, St. Patrick's is still undefeated.

The finish came after a real "fish" scrap and with the crowd rushing on the floor in a wild demonstration. It was a wild goal by St. Patrick's that ended the game.

Little Like Mud. For the full time of play, every one of the 15 men who battled in a fierce game. They were on their toes every minute, scrapping in tenacious fashion for the ball.

Equally desperate from the start, neither had the advantage after a rushing first quarter, the score ending 5 to 6. Evenly matched and both teams attacking to the point man, the Paddies had a one point margin as the half closed, 6 to 5. Many tries at the basket slipped off.

Knapp Puts Mary's Ahead. As the second half started, St. Mary's smashed through the St. Patrick's team, fighting furiously. A free throw by Knapp, who was putting forth the stellar efforts of the night, tied the count. Charlie pushed St. Mary's ahead in the next few minutes with a basket and adding two more free throws, placed the count at 13 to 9 as the third quarter closed.

In the third period, St. Mary's held St. Patrick's off with a well formed defense, taking things coolly. But, as the final lap started, St. Patrick's made a frantic dash for victory, spreading their own better and greater tag through nearly every effort of St. Mary's to staunch the attack.

Clark Wins Game. Ty Clark started things with a nice basket. Knapp made a wonderful long shot. When Homer Casey shot a pretty one and was followed by C. Clark, who tied it up, the fans went bonkers. The contest was getting hotter and hotter. More fouls were called in the quarter than in any other. It looked like an extra-period game when Ty Clark nailed a crack game for St. Mary's.

PRESIDENT McCarthy of the Paddies count league said a great deal when he declared last week it was quite a difference which side interpreted players' contracts. He is quoted as having said that when a player jumps a contract, the league comes down on him, but when an owner jumps his contract with a player, the athlete is out of luck. No less a local chap than "Smiley Bill" Latrobe, ex of the White Sox, was cited to read McCarthy's statement.

"YOU ought to bring that out," said Bill to the writer. McCarthy brought out something that ought to make the public sit up and take notice. I didn't have any trouble of this kind myself. I got what I wanted, but I know of fellows who didn't get a square deal."

IF WHAT these men say is true, it should be a case for Judge Landis. Contract jumping by the players is bad enough, but if the moguls are really so very much in it, when agreements are entered into, it is expected both sides will have honor enough to live up to the terms to which they place their John Hancock's.

PICTURES of Jess Willard as he is today, do not show the big fellow to be very much in it. He has all the stomach marks of a fat man. The flesh upon his chest, arms, thighs and legs looks flabby. In fact, it would probably be a real feast for him to get the limit with a second or third round.

SAID a local fan Saturday night after witnessing the Janesville Black Cats trim the Rockford Tom Cats: "Why, if I had only known the boys were that fast, I would have been here before. I read they were home town boys and I thought for that reason they would not be much to watch. But, from now on, I'm going to be a regular patron." That's the way some more fans like that and the Cats will be able to bring many more of the top notchers here.

Blairfield Lodge country club will not give their pro, Gene Sarazen, American golf champion, leave to play in British open.

Puck Shots — St. Paul defeated Pittsburgh, 3-0, and Eveleth trimmed Cleveland, 4-2, in U. S. hockey league. The contest was getting hotter and hotter. More fouls were called in the quarter than in any other. It looked like an extra-period game when Ty Clark nailed a crack game for St. Mary's.

Columbia university offers $10,000 to Elmer Henderson, Southern California futor, to come as grid coach.

Scrap About Scrappers—French commission, exonerated. The same aggregation that has been playing road games in southern Wisconsin and northern Illinois will represent the Bower city quintet. Palmyra is putting out a crack team that will give the R. F. B's a run.

Syracuse university to send its cross team to Europe.

Basket Debbies — Iowa beats Michigan, 26-17, and Northwestern scores out Purdue, 19-17, in conference games. Milton college outst four players for misconduct. Grover, center, and Kotal, forward, dropped to Lawrence because of scholastic difficulties.

Amateur Trapshooting association, with qualification average based on 500 targets.

Stove League Kindling — Clarence Rowland, former manager of White Sox, appearing in American league umpire. Ollie Chilli, former American league umpire, exonerated. In murder case, Coast league splits on taking stand with Fredrick, a Milwaukee pitcher, against majors. Earle Neale, Cincinnati, outfielder, to be sold or traded. Cubs sent scout to coast look for catchers.

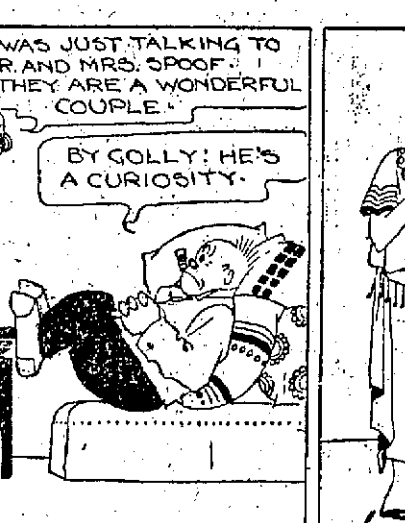

Beloit college issues call for track athletes.

Schaefer beats Matzkyama, 250-45, in a 15-minute exhibition. An 18-2 exhibition.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Joliet Lead K. C.; Cunningham Raps into 603 Count

K. O. F. LEAGUE. W. L. Pat. Cortez, 15-17. Marquette, 15-17. Joliet, 15-17. Balboa, 15-17. La Salle, 15-17. Hennepin, 15-17. Des Moines, 15-17.

More than pins were popping Monday night in the local Knights of Columbus bowling league. The LaSalles, one of the trailing outfits, sallied forth and took two from the Cortez, handing the leaders into second place. The Joliet, running the second place Marquette for a straight set, rushed into first, the Marquette falling to fourth, right behind the Balboa who came up, despite a loss of two to the Hennepin. This leaves three tied for fifth. The Des Moines remain in the cellar, though they swiped a couple from the Ponce de Leon.

While all this was going on, Cunningham of the Hennepins was smashing the wooden men for a 603 count (103-187-233). His team hit high of 2,323, three more than the Joliet. High game was taken by the Cortez, 550.

B's a run.

"Slinging sodas" is an occupation far removed from pitching baseball in big time, but that is what Cecil Causey is doing for a winter pastime. He is said to be in real mid-season form, too.

Causey wintered in Janesville last year, spending the time with his cousin, A. L. (Curley) Macoe. He was the handsome, tall fellow who sat in the ticket box and handed out little pieces of pasteboard for two bits each at the Coliseum rink on South River street.

Iowa and Purple Win Big 10 Games

W. L. Pat. Wisconsin, 15-17. Iowa, 15-17. Northwestern, 15-17. Purdue, 15-17. Minnesota, 15-17. Illinois, 15-17. Indiana, 15-17. Ohio, 15-17.

LaFayette, Ind., Northwestern's airtight defense, coupled with poor basket shooting on the part of Purple eagles cost the latter team their first western conference basketball game of the season Monday night, which Northwestern took by a score of 19 to 17. The offensive play of Staggman, Northwestern forward, featured.

The four men, charged with flagrant violation of training rules on the recent Plattville trip, were notified of their dismissal at practice Monday and asked to turn in their suits. Crandall immediately started whipping a new team into shape for the Plattville normal game here Thursday night. Kopley, who was ineligible for the Plattville trip, and Dillner, now acting captain, will form the nucleus of Crandall's makeshift five that will be sent against the Teachers. C. Hall, J. Hill and Blackie probably will be included in the new lineup.

The loss of R. Hill and McKel will be felt keenly as the two were depended upon for the bulk of Milton's offense. With the Brown and Blue varsity squad thrown on the junk pile, chances of defeating such strong teams as Plattville, Ripon and Wisconsin School of Mines are practically nil.

The Plattville game Thursday night will be preceded by a contest between the Milton college seconds and Union high school. It will be the first home game on the regular schedule.

Cecil Causey "drawing one" in New York drug store.

"Slinging sodas" is an occupation far removed from pitching baseball in big time, but that is what Cecil Causey is doing for a winter pastime. He is said to be in real mid-season form, too.

Causey wintered in Janesville last year, spending the time with his cousin, A. L. (Curley) Macoe. He was the handsome, tall fellow who sat in the ticket box and handed out little pieces of pasteboard for two bits each at the Coliseum rink on South River street.

When springing came around, Causey listened once more to the fancy of a youth and rejoined the fans at their southern training camp. He appears with McGraw's New Yorkers during the entire season, pitching off and on ball, mostly being sent in as a relief hurler.

Others were stories during the height of the season, that the young Texan was to be shipped down to Atlanta, but they never materialized. Instead, he was sold to the Philadelphia National league club. It is in New York however, that "Ted" is earning his "beans" money as a clerk in a drug store. He slings a mean draft of sweet suds, so say the fans.
